Thousands march for justice one year after murder of Jill Meagher

CONCERNED members of the public asked why taxpayer dollars were used to fund the failed appeal attempt of Jill Meagher's killer, when thousands took to the streets of Brunswick to mark the first anniversary of the 29-year-old's death.

The peace march, attended by more than 8000 people, came four days after Adrian Bayley's application to appeal his 35-year minimum jail term was refused.

Petition for rail link to Melbourne Airport attracts thousands of signatures

THOUSANDS of people have signed an online petition that says Melbourne has been "left behind in the Stone Age", despite our crowning as the world's most liveable city again.

The change.org petition calls for the construction of a rail link to Melbourne Airport and has won widespread support, gaining more than 3600 signatures within a month.

The petition, started by a Melbourne woman, said the State Government must "urgently" build a rail link to the airport.
